J. Christopher (Chris) Ward serves as the executive vice president and head of Data, Digital and Innovations for PNC Treasury Management. In this role, he manages the innovation of PNC's treasury management solution set. Ward is focused on continually enhancing the client experience and driving new business growth through the modernization of payments and application of the latest technology. In addition, Ward serves as a senior advisor to PNC's treasury management clients.

Prior to joining PNC, Ward held a number of leadership positions at Capital One, including head of product management innovation and integration for its treasury management business. He led strategic product development and commercialization initiatives to drive revenue growth, ensure customer retention and enhance customer satisfaction.

His previous experience also includes 11 years at Wells Fargo. During his tenure, Ward served as senior vice president, directing international strategy, payables and receivables and a broad range of strategic business initiatives. Other roles included senior vice president of product design and delivery and strategic technology consultant.

Ward also shares his wealth of experience as a board member of The Clearing House. He earned a bachelor's degree in business administration, with a concentration in accounting and computer information systems, from Robert Morris University.
